From Brand: Johns Hopkins University Press : Challenges of an Aging Society: Ethical Dilemmas, Political Issues (Gerontology) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Challenges of an Aging Society: Ethical Dilemmas, Political Issues (Gerontology):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great book By Amanda AllsLove the book. It arrived on time. Ordered for a class and ended up reading the material with little effort.

In this important and timely collection, some of the best minds in gerontology and bioethics including Nancy Dubler, Rick Moody, Andrew Achenbaum, Robert Hudson, and Robert Binstock explore the ethical, social, and political challenges of an aging society. A unique combination of disciplines and perspectives from economics to nursing, psychology to theology this valuable synthesis of theory and practice provides frameworks and analyses for considering the ethical issues of both individual and societal aging. The contributors address the major policy challenges of Social Security, Medicare, and prescription drugs as well as ethical issues ranging from individual autonomy to family responsibility to distributive justice. Specific topics covered include end-of-life decision making, family relations across generations, age-based intergenerational policies, and the reform of Social Security. Contributors: W. Andrew Achenbaum, Ph.D., University of Houston; Vern L. Bengtson, Ph.D., University of Southern California; Robert H. Binstock, Ph.D., Case Western Reserve University; Christine E. "An excellent book... Will be exceedingly helpful to clinicians and nonclinicians who are involved in the development of public policy." (JAMA) "Easily readable and well referenced... It is an excellent, well-thought-out resource for where the U.S. is on the issue of gerontology as it relates to ethics and public policy... Highly recommended." (Choice) "A good survey of many aging society issues." (Future Survey) "Some of the individual chapters are superb... contains some interesting original material as well as a useful synthesis of the literature... There is something in it for almost everyone." (New England Journal of Medicine) "This book is well edited and presented, which makes reading it quite straightforward, even while taking on at times some complex issues." (Karen Le Ball Age and Ageing) "Well-written, thoroughly referenced, and provocative. The editors and contributing authors of this volume consist of a cavalcade of national stars in the field of aging and public policy." (Marshall B. Kapp, Southern Illinois University School of Law) "This book... is unique in that it explores issues and challenges at hand with the current aging society through an 'ethical' lens, and brings together experts in a wide range of fields covering sociobiology, social work, economics, public policy, theology, public health, bioethics, nursing and neurology" (Erica Yoonkyung Journal of Sociology and Social Welfare) "There is something for everyone in this collection" (John Bond Aging and Society) "It is a compilation of multiple thought-provoking analyses of the status of elderly and the aging, and includes current and future ramifications."
